While blockbuster shows abound in New York this month, the city's galleries are also fertile ground for finding fresh works by younger generations of artists. From impressive solos by N. Dash and Eva Kot'átková, to a group show dedicated to China's youngest generation of artists, below we highlight 21 shows that should not be missed this May.

For her first New York solo show, “Hollow Body,” Alexi-Meskhishvili adopts the term “hollow-body hold”—a wrestling and gymnastics position—as a metaphor for the way her photographic works hold invisible meaning. Known for skillfully splicing distinct photographs in a practice that combines analog and digital photography, the artist presents recent works, including staged photographs that emulate her forebears like Lee Friedlander and Robert Mapplethorpe.
